324 Top U.S. Firms Said to Be Dominated By Eight Institutions

The Power List

- Five New York City banks-Morgan Guaranty, Bankers Trust, First National City, Chase Manhattan and Bank of New York.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (WP).-Most of the nation's largest corporations appear to be dominated or controlled by eight institutions, including six banks.

This is a major finding of a new Senate study of the 30 principal holders of voting stock in corporations. In addition to the banks, the main stockholders include an agency of the New York Stock Exchange and the country's biggest

The 419-page report contains many previously inaccessible or obscure facts, but it acknowledges that a large data gap remains—on the concentration of stockholdings in bank trust departments and among other institutional investors.

The study, "Disclosure of Corporate Ownership," was published by two Senate Government Operations subcommittees. One is headed by Sen. Lee Metcalf, D. Mont., the sponsor of a bill to require public disclosure of the true owners of large companies, and the other by Sen Edmund S. Muskie,

In May, 1972, Sen. Metcalf sent a letter of inquiry on stockholdings to the 100 industrial corporations having the largest sales volumes, to the 50 leading firms in each of four categories—transportation, public utilities (including communications), retailing and banking—and to the 24 major life insurance companies that are not mutuals (mutually owned insurers have no stockholders).
Of these 324 corporations, 89 responded fully. A large proportion consisted of airlines, railroads and communications companies, which are required to file information with federal regulatory agencies.

Fifty-eight firms did not reply to Sen. Metcalf's letter. Among them were 15 industrial corporations, including General Foods, Aluminum Co. of America and Georgia Pacific Corp. Retailing firms made up the business group showing the greatest lack of response.

There were 177 corporations that supplied partial or irrelevant data. The commonest justification given was a professed need for confidentiality.

This justification was called into question in the Senate report, which noted that while some firms compiled fully with Sen. Metcalf's request, others in their categories did not. For (Continued on Page 2, Col. 6)

While the poll shows a slim majority against impeachment, 45 percent to 44, indications are that opposition stems not from beget in the President's innocence but from fear of the destructive effect an impeachment proceeding Only 11 percent of those opposed to impeachment said they took that position because they believed the charges unjustified.

The figures lead Roper analysts to conclude that "the President would seem to have a thin hold indeed on his office in the court of public opinion."

The Roper poll, a syndicated subscription public opinion service conducted 10 times a year, was made available to The New York Times by the American Civil Liberties Union and will be used by that organization as part of its formal campaign to impeach the President.

The poll was conducted among ted sample of 2,020 persons who were interviewed in early November, before the disclosure of the 18-minute gap in a key White House tape subpoensed as evidence by the U.S. District Court here.

An analysis of the poll results showed that four of five among those polled believed that one or more of 13 charges or criticisms against Mr. Nixon were serious and probably involved him. More than 50 percent included in this category believed the charge that the President was involved in covering up the Watergate break-in and that he is withholding evidence from the Senate Watergate committee and the special Watergate prosecutor's office.

Most of the concern of those polled, in fact, seemed to center on the President's withholding of information. For example, while 31 percent expressed concern about the bombing of Cambodia 36 percent said that the Presi-dent's "keeping the bombing of Cambodia a secret was a serious

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (WP).— Vice-President Ford suggested to-day that a compromise could be struck between President Nixon and the Senate Watergate committee chairman, Sen, Sam J. Ervin jr., D., N.C., in Sen, Ervin's sweeping request for nearly 500 Watergate-related documents and

Mr. Ford, interviewed on an NBC News television program, "Meet the Press," called Sen. Ervin's bid a "scattergun approach" and a "fishing expedition" and said be agreed with the President's decision to reject it.

But the Vice-President said he thought that if the committee was "willing to make some refinements in the demands, cutting it down to things that are more relevant to the committee's responsibilities, then I think there may be and I underline may be -some area of compromise."

Mr. Ford said he had not discussed the issue of disclosure of Watergate information with Mr. Nixon in any depth in recent weeks. But, he said, "I hope and trust as we go down the road perhaps there can be some com-

The Vice-President also said that he has urged the continuation and expansion of Operation Candor-the release of information on Watergate-related matters designed to repair the President's credibility with the public.

He strongly favored the release of information on Mr. Nixon's income tax and financial situations, he said, "and I hope and trust, despite what I understand is some reluctance at the present time, that the President continues with Operation Candor with a full disclosure or white paper involve: ing the ITT matter and the so-called milk fund contributions."

Asked about a recent poll by the Roper Organization that in-dicated 79 percent of individuals surveyed believed one or more of the serious charges made against Mr. Nixon, Mr. Ford sidestepped the question and noted that 45 percent in the same poll were against impeachment of the President (to 44 percent for it). "Somewhere in between it seems to me," he said, "the American people may have some lack of full faith in every action by the President, but, on the other hand, the majority are not in favor of impeachment action that is conimplated by some in the House of Representatives."

Several weeks after the outbreak of the October war in the Middle East, the sources say, Ambassador Martin sent to Washington what in Pentagon jargon is called "Saigon's want list." The cost of the items on this list totaled more than $1 billion and it included requests for the new F-5E ground-support fighter, electronic equipment and a variety of tactical missiles. The ambassador, learning that his request had received a lukewarm response, then sent a cable directly to Mr. Nixon. Every ambassador has this right, but it is seldom exercised.

No Commitments

Officials said that the ambassador's cable stressed the concern of senior South Vietnamese generals about the devastating effect of Soviet-supplied weapons in the Arab-Israeli war in October and their fear of having to face the same weapons in Vietnam.

Meanwhile, military experts began examining the details of Saigen's "want list"—without, how-

CIA Director Opposes Order To Give Data in Court Case

By Laurence Stern

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (WP) .-William E. Colby, Central Intelligence Arency director, has intervened directly in a court battle over a book manuscript which he said would compromise highly sensitive intelligence sources and

The CIA director, in an affi-davit filed Wednesday in Alexandria. Va., Federal Court, offered to testify in private before Judge Albert Bryan in support of the government's efforts to prevent publication of 225 passages ordered deleted from the book by the agency on security grounds.

Mr. Colby asserted that the dis-closures in the manuscript by two former government intelligence officers would "cause serious harm to the national defense interests of the United States and will seriously disrupt the conduct of this country's foreign relations."

The authors of the manuscript, former CIA analyst Victor L. Marchetti and former State Department intelligence official John D. Marks, are challenging the basis of the CIA's security deletions. This could lead to a legal battle on the issues of govern-mental secrecy powers that were thrashed out in the Pentagon papers trial, which was decided by the Supreme Court.

The two authors are seeking to invoke the standard applied by the court in that case whether publication would "surely result n direct, immediate and irreparable injury to the nation or its

New Generation of Britons Now on the Dole

By Richard Eder LONDON, Jan. 6 (NYT),twos or threes, for moral support, the applicants made their way along the asphalt path behind the Catford Labor Exchange and through a door marked "Unemployment Benefits."

They were dressed well, if inexpensively. Their hesitations and their unfamiliarity with the procedures made it plain that today's generation of London's machinists, typists, printers and dress-cutters has come a long way from the world of their fathers for whom, in the 1930s, the dole was an everyday affair.

Last week, as the British government's answer to the energy crisis and the coalminers' slowdown, most British workers were put on a three-day week. Since Monday, about 750,000 have registered for unemployment payments to make up for part of their pay loss, and in the next week or two the total is likely to be several

"I think I'll spend my two days off putting vegetables in my garden, said Zita Pryor, a lively, slender young woman who works as a machinist in a dress-making factory. She earns $60 a week. This will now be cut to about $36.

Unemployment benefits in the case of those who have been reduced to a three-day work week consist of a weekly payment of about $4.30 supplemented by ad-

ITT Carving Out a New City In Florida Coast Wilderness

By Jon Nordheimer

PAIM COAST, Fla., Jan. 6 (NYI).-In the early morning stilmess, as herons stalk mullet in the shallows of the Matanzas River, the engines of earthmoving machines can be heard coming from behind the pine or shudders from the residents of tiny Fiagier County (pop. 4,450) on the Atlantic coast about 20 miles south of St. Augustine, the oldest city in North America.

For here, behind the screening trees, a new city is being carved out of the wilderness by a sub-sidiary of the International Telephone & Telegraph Corp.

By the turn of the century, according to plans of the ITT Development Corp., a city with a population equaling Cleveland's will be located on the banks of the Matanzas. An international sales force of 600, working mainly in the northeastern United States, sold $65 million worth of home sites in the company's Palm Coast Development in 1973, aiming for a $1-billion investment and 600,000 residents by the year

New Species Of Bird Seen In Hawaii WASHINGTON, Jan. 6

The bird, a member of the Hawailan honeycreeper family is believed to be the first new genus and species of bird reported in 10 years, according to the National Science Foundation, which announced the discovery.

The bird, yet to be named, was sighted by eight students working on an ecological study of the forest on Haleakala Volcano on the island of Mani, the second largest island in the Hawailan chain. The bird, about the size of an English sparrow, is and light buff on its underside. The most striking feature is a black mask which extends from the forehead to below the lower bill and back in a wedge ending behind the eye. The bill is also black.

Mr. St. Clair was described by some of his close associates Friday as a scrupulously thorough planner who routinely compiles elaborate trial books before the start of a case and rarely is sur-prised by courtroom developments.

He is a registered Republican but he has defended a number of seemingly ideological oppositional including the Rev. William Sloane Coffin, the Yale University chaplain who was tried in 1968 for conspiring to violate the Selective Service Act in an anti-war demonstration. Mr. St. Clair also defended a Harvard University professor accused in 1958 of contempt of court for refusing to name colleagues who allegedly were Communist sympathizers, and he has been involved for everal years in school desegregation cases in Boston.

Canadian's Recorded Praise Of U.S. Becoming Best-Seller

NEW YORK, Jan 6 (AP).—A by earthquakes, it is the United three-minute recording called States that is there to help. So "Americans," spoken, not sung. far this spring, 59 American comand written by a 73-year-old Canadian in praise of his fellows to the south, is finding wide approval in the United States.

Two million Americans had purchased it by Wednesday, its 16th day of release, putting it at No. 14 on the best-seller chart, which usually is dominated by rock 'n' roll records.

The recording puts its premise on the line in the first sentence: "Americans, this Canadian thinks it's time to speak up for the Americans, the most generous and probably the least-appreciated people on all the earth."

It was written in early 1973 as an editorial by Gordon Sinclair, 73, owner of radio station CFRB in Toronto. It was reprinted in newspapers throughout the year. On Dec. 2 over station CKLW, which beams across the border from Canada into Detroit, it was read by Byron MacGregor, 25. also a Canadian.

While he played Paul Simon's Bridge Over Troubled Water," Mr. MacGregor read Mr. Sinclair's words, written the spring before: "As long as 60 years ago, when I first started to read newspapers, I read of floods in the Yalu River. Who rushed in the men and the money to help? The Americans did. Today the rich bottomland of the Mississippi is under water and no foreign land has sent a dollar to help.

President Denies Cox Firing Tied to Fears of Jury Action

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif., Jan. 6 (AP).—The White House denied last night a published report that a reason for the firing of Archibald Cox as special Watergate prosecutor was a fear that President Nixon would be named by a grand jury as an unindicted coconspirator in the Watergate

The New York Times carried the report in today's editions. White House Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said: 'Any story that Mr. Cox was dismissed for such a reason is totally false. Mr. Cox was disd because he refused to abide by a presidential instruc-

The Times also quoted well informed sources as saying that Mr. Cox and his staff had discussed the possibility of naming Mr. Nixon as an unindicted coconspirator as a solution to the constitutional restraint against indicting an incumbent President, The sources said that no serious consideration was given then to the concept. Interviewed in Tucson, Ariz., last night, Mr. Cox said that he had never considered such action.

"There is no basis whatsoever for any supposition that I ever d naming the as an unindicted co-conspirator in an indictment," he said.

Mr. Cox, who spoke in Tucson st. s. $100-a-plate fund-raising dinner for Rep. Morris K. Udall, D., Ariz., said: "No member of my staff ever made such a recommendation to me. To the best of my knowledge, no member of my staff ever entertained such

Question by Richardson

The Times story, by Seymour M. Hersh, quoted Mr. Cox in a telephone interview as saying: "Elliot called me up and asked if it was a fact that I was about to come out with such an indictment," the naming of Mr. Nixon as an unindicted co-conspirator. Such a designation is usually reserved for those participants in a criminal activity who agree to aid the prosecution by testifying against others involved.

"I said, 'No,' it was not a fact, Mr. Cox continued, "and Elliot's response was, Good. I'll take this back and maybe it'll do some

"This does confirm that it was being bruited about in the White assure you there was no such thought in my mind. It was just a dream or a nightmare they [the White House] were having

In a subsequent telephone interview. The Times reported that Mr. Richardson said the matter "probably" had been raised with him by J. Fred Buzhardt, then a special counsel to Mr. Nixon.

"There was conjecture or rumor from some source," Mr. Richardson said, "and I brought it up in a low-key way with Archie." Mr. Cox was dismissed on Oct. 20 by Solicitor General Robert H. Bork the acting attorney general, after Mr. Richardson and his deputy resigned rather than follow Mr Nixon's order to fire Mr. Cox.

In a news conference six days after Mr Cox was dismissed. Mr. Nixon explained that the ouster occurred after the special prosecutor refused to accede to a "compromise' over the White House tapes. Mr. Cox who was promised an independent hand by Mr. Richardson when he took the post, had no part in working out the so-called compromise.

The Times reported that ources close to the Watergate investigation headed by Mr. Cox's successor as special prosecutor, Leon Jaworski, indicated that there were no plans to name Mr. Nixon as a co-conspirator in a group of cover-up indictments expected within six weeks.

A White House source defended the fears of last fall over the possible naming of Mr. Nixon as a co-conspirator, saying: "Rightly or wrongly, we thought that was always a possibility. This kind of thing was inherent in the situation from the outset." Another source with close White House connections explained that officials there had received "certain intelligence" indicating that the special prosecutor's office was seriously planning to name Mr. Nixon as an unindicted co-conspirator. "We had low-level intelligence from people on Cox's staff," the source said. "That was more than enough to raise ques-

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (NYT).—With a news release and few critical comments, Rep. Les Aspin has succeeded m saving 24,000 gallons of aviation gasoline that an Air Force general had wanted to use on a flying inspection trip to

After the Aspin protest Friday the Air Force reconsidered and decided it was not necessary for Brig. Gen. William R. Yost, the chief of staff of the Air Force Communications Service, to take his own plane on a two-week inspection trip of communications facilities in Europe.

The Air Force has ordered that Gen. Yost take one of the regular flights of the Military Airlift Command for the trip. The order was issued several hours after Rep. Aspin, D., Wis., had made public a "priority" message sent by Gen. Yost to Air Force commanders, outlining his plan for a two-week trip to England, West Germany, Italy, Turkey and Spain.

Rep. Aspin estimated that the flight, aboard a DC-6 scheduled to leave today, would have consumed at least 24,000 gallons of fuel—an estimate not disputed by the Air Force. In his news release, Rep. Aspin asked: "How can we talk about limiting the ordinary citizen to 35 gallons per mouth while generals throw away 24,000 gallons on two-week trips

U.S. Marijuana Use Exceeds Estimates, Senate Study Says

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (AP).-The Senate Internal Security Subcommittee estimates that the makings for more than 5 billion marijuana and hashish elgarettes entered the United States last

That was enough to provide nearly 20 "joints" for every man, woman and child in the country and indicates that "consumption far exceeds any previous esti-mates," it said in a report made public yesterday.

The subcommittee's estimate was based on drug-enfercement administration figures on scizures of marijuana and hashish, both products of the cannabis plant, for the first nine months of 1973. Projecting those figures for the final three months of the year, the estimate assumes that roughly 10 times as much marijuana and hashish gets into the country as is seized by authoritles.

Sen. James O. Eastland, chairman of the subcommittee, called this a fairly conservative rule of thumb and said that it indicated total consumption of marijuana in 1973 was roughly 17 million pounds and, of hashish, about 500.000 pounds.

subcommittee began an investigation of the world drug situation and its impact on internal security in 1972.

Pro-Marijuana Effort Scn. Eastland said that "the pandemic use of marijuana and hashish has been brought about. in part, by a militant pro-marijuana propaganda campaign conducted by many new-left organizations and by the entire underground press... And it has been stimulated, perhaps in a major degree, by a number of highly publicized reports, some official some unofficial, which have taken a rather benign attitude toward marijuana." He said that Dr. Olav J. Braenden, director of the UN Narcotics Laboratory in Geneva, told the subcommittee last year that, among other things, researchers have found that "cannabis accumulates in the brains and gonads in the manner of DDT: that it produces fetal deformities in nimals, in addition to abortions and stillbirths, in a manner that resembles the damage done by thal'domide; that it results in breakage and serious damage to human chromosomes, and that it regiously reduces the body's ability to produce DNA, a critical component of all cells, including the reproductive cells."

Death Sentence Given In U.S. Killing of 6

DONALDSONVILLE, Ga., Jan. 6 (UPI)—Carl J. Isaacs jr. 19, the first of three Maryland prison escapees to go on trial for the killing of six members of a farm family in this area, was convicted last week on six counts of first-degree murder. He was then sentenced to die in the electric chair on Peb. 15. Isaacs, whose brother Billy, 16, had testified against him, hunched over, biting his fingernails, as each of the 12 jurors was polled on the verdict. The defense said it would appeal.

Still to be tried are two others who, like Carl Leages, allegedly shot five men of the Alday family dead on the Alday farm last May 15. The wife of one of the Aldays was slain after being raped repeatedly, police said.

Tapes and Impeachment

transfer of more than 500 presidential tapes and documents, the Senate Watergate committee made a tactical error. It revived the still unsettled question of presidential privilege in a form which gives Mr. Nixon and his lawyers the right to claim that that committee is on a fishing expeditionthat is, that it hopes to search at large through a variety of material, rather than examine pin-pointed evidence of specific materiality to its work.

Whether this is within the committee's powers can, of course, be debated at length. Sen. Ervin denies that the President has any constitutional authority to withhold evidence remanded by an authorized committee. The President insists that he must determine what can be turned over to the committee. And the law of the matter remains in doubt.

This repetition of an old confrontation could have been averted by an earlier agreement by the President, Congress and the courts on some method of screening presidential tapes and papers to preserve legitimate confidentiality while fulfilling the proper roles of congressional committees and the courts with respect to the investigation of criminal acts. It could also have been in part avoided had the committee confined its legal action to some particular evidence that would seem obviously necessary. But between President Nixon's original assertions of virtually unlimited executive privilege and the present sweeping claims of the committee, a new collision became inevitable.

This is unfortunate, because some grey areas between the separated powers under the Constitution allow a more practical form of government. It is also unfortunate as a matter of precedent, has become, for

It is clear that by asking for the mass sissue before the nation: Shall Mr Nixon be impeached? Because the vagueness of what, in constitutional word and spirit, constitutes an impeachable offense, this matter may well be decided, less upon specific acts and the President's responsibility for them, than upon far broader grounds of national (and political) interest.

> For example, the most powerful argument for impeachment at this moment does not rest on whether Mr. Nixon can be successfully convicted of specific wrongful association with the illegal acts of some of his appointees, but whether the whole Watergate mess has so weakened the Nixon administration that the only answer is a new president. It might be pointed out that a recent Roper poll shows that 79 percent of those questioned believe that Mr. Nixon is connected directly with one or more serious offensesbut a slim majority is still opposed to impeachment. If, assuming that the House would bring impeachment proceedings, the Senate reacted in the way the public has done, Mr. Nixon would not be convicted. Would this, as advocates of impeachment contend, clear the air?

Presumably, evidence in the tapes and documents would do no more than confirm or refute some particulars of the public impression of Mr. Nixon's personal complicity in various aspects of Watergate. Neither would free him from responsibility, as head of the administration for the acts of his agents (which he has, in fact, assumed). Successful impeachment would depend, to very large degree, on quite different factors-to be precise, on votes in Congress. The quarrel over the tapes, which once loomed so large and which is still significant because it may well be irrelevant to the main the major problem, a diversion.

Rising living standards, and the spread of new industries requiring special aptitudes and ready to pay for them, attracted the lower level of Europe's own employment reservoir to relatively skilled jobs. This left a vacuum of less attractive, less well-paid positions to

The Mediterranean basin primarily supplied the filler: lands which were not Common Market members (except for Italy, whose south has always been disfavored and which had a surplus of available workers).

There is no accurate statistic on the number of foreigners attracted to temporary jobs in Europe by this phenomenon. Thousands of workers entered the area illegally, across the Pyrenees, smuggled on ships into France or by airplane (mainly Pakistenis)

Patrick Hillery, social affairs commissioner for the Common Market, estimates that its nine member nations employ four million immigrants. The Economist of London wrote recently that there were eight million or more -plus four million or so dependents. Without question, if an employment squeeze starts, these foreigners will be the first to

As it is, they do a large share of Europe's dirty work—from domestic service to street cleaning—and they are often treated like indentured labor. Officially, Germans call them guest workers but unofficially one can hear them referred to as "the niggers of Europe," even if the bulk of those in the Federal Republic are Yugoslav, Turkish or Greek.

'New Slaves'

In France, where most of the North Africans cluster, they are-sometimes referred to contemptuously as "the new slaves." There have been frightening signs of prejudice against these willing hands who helped make the European miracle possible. administration will press Congress to let defense spending soar a staggering $8 billion over a year ago, but even that increase will fail to match Soviet military

The defense budget for fiscal year 1975, beginning July 1, was decided on last week amid typical confusion at the Nixon White House. It calls for spending at least $87 billion—far more than

Yet, that estronomical figure is almost wholly the result of infla-tion, military pay increases voted by Congress and special aid to Israel during the Yom Kippur war. It does not even pretend to solve U.S. problems in the race with Moscow for technological suprem-

Nothing could more dismally underline the dangerous predicament of U.S. defense today. Thanks to the crushing burden of the all-volunteer armed services, military pay makes up an ever-larger percentage of the budget. Thus, the grim prospect: rising defense spending that fails to prevent dangerous Soviet superiority in weaponry-in other words, running as fast as possible but still not keeping up.

What further complicates this are vagaries of federal budgeting. While the anti-defense bloc in Congress boasts of a 22 billion-plus cut in the Pentagon budget, that cut affects authorizations for future years only. In truth, the $79 billion listed for defense in fiscal year 1974, ending June 30, actually climbed to $30 billion.

This confused none other than Roy Ash, President Nixon's imperious budget chief. Desperately trying to control ballooning spending, Mr. Ash took $77 billion —the $79-billion estimate for fiscal 1974 minus the $2-billion cut as his starting defense figure, aiming to keep the fiscal 1975 projection around $80 billion.

Screams of outrage came from the Pentagon, aided no little by domestic counselor Melvin R. Laird. The former secretary of defense, leaving the Nixon ad-ministration for good Feb. 1 as a parting gesture convinced the budget-makers that $87 billion is really a bare-bones minimum.

The arithmetic is grim but simple. Taking the real fiscal 1974 spending figure $80 billion—as the starting point, more than $5 billion must be added for inflation and the inexprable salary demands of the all-volunteer army, plus $1.5 billion for the Yom Kippur war. The grand total af around $87 billion has now been accepted

But that total, the Joint Chiefs of Staff believe, will not prevent the Soviet Union from overtaking the U.S. in conventional arms in the late 1970s. It would limit reto one-half the Kremlin's and would provide ship construction funds far less than Russia's. Laird would be the first to admit that the budget battle he won in the White House last week still leaves the United States short.

But the needed increases for research and development seem unattainable on Capitol Hill, partly because the overall federal budget, including a variety of new.

The Terrorists

How many helpless, hapless, innocent people have been mur-dered by Palestinian terrorists of late? (27 at Lod in 1972, 2 and 47 wounded in Athens 1973, 33 and how many more in Rome and Athens the other day, to cite only the more striking figures. No one is innocent? True: no more than the victims of Lidice and Oradour. At least, in the last place, the Nazi murderers were soldiers risking their lives in war. Nor was that an excuse. How many Palestinians caught after killing men, women, children, or holding them to ransom, have paid for it with their lives? Their treatment is reminiscent of that which arrested Nazi thugs received in the courts of Weimar Germany: the sympathy or cowardice of their judges made sure that they would not have to bear the responsibility of their acts, only enjoy their excitement.

Of course, for the terrorist, action is thrilling; talking about it afterwards even more. latter is almost assured when terrorist actions take place against unarmed civilians, and when a terrorist captured quickly becomes a terrorist released. Why shouldn't he be released, when the ruling philosophy has largely shifted the notion of responsibility from the personal to the public plane, when authorities supposed to protect the security of their subjects cannot protect their own. when the professional keepers of the public conscience (Le Monde, b etc.) raise only a feeble bleat at crimes committed by others than their usual quarries (the U.S., etc.). "No: mummy is not angry. She is only very hurt!"

certainly responsible for the Palestinian problem. Without our (continuing) subsidies, the Palestinian refugees of 1948 could not have been kept in camps, to breed and multiply, by Arab governments determined to prevent their integration, their settlement, and the waning of the issue their suffering agglomerations represented. We hoped that if we paid enough (little enough!) for long enough, the Falestinians would somehow go away. Now Arab governments hope so too. The Palestinians won't.

But sympathy for their plight should not mean tolerance for terrorism. Even the laws of war, if war this be, have limits. Until ists are eliminated by every means at hand, and there are many, those who condone or admire them will continue to think, with good reason, that those on whom they prey, at small personal risk and with no fear of retaliation.

Cooperation on Oil or more of their oil, while American dependence is only about 10 percent. Without a generous United States offer to share more equitably the burdens of energy shortfalls, America's allies can hardly be expected to risk the joint approach to the oil producers that alone could discourage further economic warfare and monopolistic price

A joint approach could in fact alter the whole bargaining basis between the oil producing and consuming nations. The industrial countries obviously have need of Arab oil; but it is equally true that the Arab countries have need of the industrial nations' manufactured and agricultural goods, military equipment, shipping, financial markets and investment outlets. Moreover, a common front of the oil consumers, coupled with a restriction of nonessential uses and urgent development of other energy resources, would reduce demand for the oil that the Arabs must sell to survive.

Once the industrial countries pursue a united policy, their power to exert economic countermeasures will be immense, while the intolerable threat of economic disaster at the hands of the oil producers will correspondingly diminish.

The Elections in Israel'

What is needed in Israel is less a change of parties in government than a change of generations. Such a change is, of course, inevitable in the long run, but it needs to come quickly if the chance of peace is not to be lost. The call for a new leadership after the October war came from inside the Labor party as well as outside and now that the election is over it is sure to be renewed. Mrs. Meir herself is said to be more than ever anxious for a well earned retirement. Her party has lost votes to doves as well as hawks. The case for a new leadership which can combine strength with flexibility is surely overwhelming.

-From the Times (London).

. The Israeli electorate's overwhelming preoccupation with security and defensible borders will have been only partly responsible for the gains made by the right. The other important factor has been distillusionment with the Labor leadership and the domination of the party machine by a small number of veteran politicians. At the very least it can be said that the Israeli political scene is in a state of flux and that the formation of a strong government will be difficult to achieve. The odds are that another election will have to be held.

Spain's Retreat From Europe

Madrid's new cabinet constitutes a shift to the right only in a limited sense. The previous government under Carrero Blanco was already so rightist that, aside from the ultra-Falangists, it would be hard to imagine anything further in that direction. But the old cabinet included some brilliant men, resolute intellectuals, some of whom had recognized that Spain can hardly have a future without moving closer to the rest of Europe. The new ministers, however, would regard that premise as an unproved theory.

The new cabinet unquestionably puts Eunow being guided by men whose accustomed

The students seek publicity, and the experience of yesterday, when their brothers were organizing against the Victnam war, is fresh in the memory Yale University appears to be an administrative center for the drive for impeachment, which is backed by the editors of all eight Ivy League colleges.

After the Thanksgiving vacation, a Yale student writing in the college newspaper explained the problem carefully to student and faculty. You see he said. in the end all problems are really political. We can spend the rest of our lives deciding whether or peachable in the sense that Madison or Hamilton or Marshall might have defined "impeach-But that which is impeachable is really that which Congress judges to be impeachable, and Congress is, in the end, our creature. • It is likely that the direction being taken by the students will lead to a very great frustra-tion. To lead the fight for impeachment from the streets both plays into Mr. Nixon's hands tactically, and reinforces, strategically, the opposition to impeachment. Precisely what will stiffen the resistance to impeachment is mob action. Mob action can of course accomplish political eructations. When after the war the majority of the Belgian people voted to keep Leopold king, Paul-Henri Spaak led the fight in the streets to force him to abdicate: which he did, bequeathing Belgium a king who, so to speak, has never been heard from since. Those who fear a castrated executive will stiffen their opposition to Nixon's impeachment precisely as the pressure for it comes from, or seems to come from, the hot blood of talk of impeachment was general, I ventured a distinction worth resuscitating. It is this: that as things have worked out in the American experience, the impeachment of a President is something we resort to not when we desire to punish a president, but when we desire to replace him. A president (I elaborated) takes on some of the functions, and concurrently some of the immonities, of the sovereign. Accordingly he is not tossed out because of a general corruption, or because he has pushed his power in extra-constitutional ways. President Grant was not impeached, nor was Franklin Delano Roosevelt. Impeadment is for when you decide that The Man must be removed. ## Clocks in U.S. Are Set Back To Save Fuel

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.-Clocks calm and "determined." almost roro set one hour sheed in most of the United States today in a move to cut fuel consumption by using more daylight. The Federal Energy Office expects a national saving of 100.000 to 150,000 barrels of oil a day during daylight-saving time, normally only in use during the r months.

The assumption is that Amerteans use more light for their carly evening activities than they do in the pre-dawn period There may be some saving in fuel for heating, too, but experts appear to be less certain of that. The law providing for the experiment in year-round daylightsaying time will continue through April 1975. In the interval studies are to be done to determine whether or not the change does Maye energy. Some parts of the country are being exempted at the start.

Hawail, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and most of Indiana are automatically exempted. An announcement Priday from the Uniform Time Office of the Department of Transportation said that Arizona also would receive an exemption through April, 1975, while the northeast corner of Oregon and most of Idaho, except for its northern panhandle, would receive temporary exemptions.

The purpose of the temporary exemptions is to give the state legislatures a chance to decide whether they want to be excluded for the entire year and a quarter. The governor of Kentucky will be authorized to redraw the timezone lines within his state to put on Central Time everything except 12 counties near Cincinnati and Huntington, W. Va. The 12 will be on Eastern Time. With these changes, the entire state will go on daylight saving. Even proponents of daylightsaving time concede that it will be an added inconvenience and perhaps sometimes a hazard to schoolchildren in the pre-dawn darkness unless schools change their hours, Some tre believed to

After attending Glasgow University he went to study at Balliol College, Oxford, and at Harvard. He had lived in Paris, Rome and New York before he had even made a brief stay in London. When he published "The English People" in 1943 the fact that he was able to look at England with a degree of detachment added to its interest. He had much success with it as he did with "The American Problem," which came out the following year and pointed up the differences rather than the affinities of Americans and Britons. He wrote 10 books on America.

His books on France were fewer but very highly regarded. "The Development of Modern France, 1870-1939" came out in 1940 at the time of the French collapse in World War II. In this closely knit history he showed how goveromental weaknesses had exposed France to corruption and irresponsible parliamentarianism. Events at that very moment were bearing out his views.

His informative "U.S.A., Outline of the Country, Its Pecple and Institutions" was published in 1941. It seemed to be a labor of love while his "America in the Modern World" appeared more critical of some aspects of American life: McCarthvism economic imperialism in Latin America and the concentration on private enterprise sometimes to the detriment of public service. He married Miss Olwen Kendall, an archaeologist, They had three sons and a daughter. JOSEPH COLLINS.

Moscow Assails Schlesinger On Bid for Arms Budget Rise

By Hedrick Smith

MOSCOW, Jan. 6 (NYT).—The Soviet press has attacked U. S. Defense Secretary James R. Defense Secretary Tames R. Schlesinger's plans to seek an $85billion defense budget for 1975 with the criticism that it is an attempt "to turn back the process of detente."

A lead editorial Friday in Izvestia, the government newspaper, charged "American hawks" with fighting for acceleration of the arms race" and contended that this was "particularly unseemly after Moscow had announced a formal reduction in its 1974 defense budget. The Communist party's Central Committee in mid-December approved a Soviet defense budget of 17.6 billion rubles or $23.5 bil-lion, cown from 17.9 billion rubles last year. But important items such as the Soviet nuclear-weapons program and key research development expenditures and are hidden in other budget items.

SALT Issue

The Izvestia commentary did not refer directly to the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks with Washington, but Moscow was indirectly criticizing Mr. Schlesinger's plans to build more flexi-bility into the American strategic missile force, an issue bearing directly on the arms talks.

The arms negotiations are stalled over what some American officials reportedly regard as unfair Soviet demands that Moscow, in effect, retain numerical advantages in missile launchers while having an opportunity to pull abreast of the United States in sophisticated weapons tech-

So far, the Soviet press has not shown any particular alarm over the fact that the three main negotiations with the United States and its allies—the SALT parley.

HOUSTON, Jan. 6 (UPI).—Scientists said yesterday that the Kohoutek comet, once billed as the astronomical wonder of the century, is going to be a "great disappointment" to gaze at, no more spectacular than the average star.

The Skylab-3 astronauts, Lt. Col. Gerald P. Carr, Dr. Edward G. Gibson and Lt. Col. William R. Pogue, reported from their vantage point above earth's atmosphere that the comet was "fainter than faint" and growing increasingly dim as it moved away from the sun Dr. Thornton Page, an astronomer with the Naval Research Lab of Washington, said that he and another NRL cometwatcher, Dr. Don Packer, had developed a theory to try to explain Kohoutek's drop in brightness. "It's going to be a great disappointment," Dr. Page said. "I'm afraid it will be a rather faint object. My expectation is it will look like a rather normal tar, not even a bright star. With the naked eye you might be able to see a little bit of the tail, but I'm afraid people will have to use binoculars to see Kohoutek's full glory." The astronomer said that he and Dr. Packer think some of the numerous constituents believed to be in the comet's nucleus have formed a sticky white compound that has covered the nucleus in some way, thus locking in much of the Most of the brightness would come from material being "burned" off the extremely cold comet nucleus when it was near the sun. Dr. Page said, and that apparently wasn't hap-

New Issues to Test Appetite For Long-Term Dollar Debt

By Carl Gewirtz

PARIS, Jan. 6 (IHT) —If this week's feature were being shown in CinemaScope, it surely would "The Dollar Rides

Lag seen in the previous epic gear ago, the dollar had been estracised hemorrhaging profusely and left for dead.

The new script opens with a panoramic sweep of the wheat fields and soybean crops of the American heartland and a sudden close up of the dollar-succored and alive! Having lost some 40 percent of its former weight, the dollar has a new, lean look rather gaunt — with only the slightest hint of a limp.

The plot thickens with the appearance of the Arab Legion coming and of the desert. In a gay that only Hollywood could have contrived this new threat is turned to advantage and, quick as a blink, the dollar has wiped out the gains made by the French franc. At almost five to the franc, the dollar is standing taller than it was at the abortive peace pact of February 1973 and is almost back to its December 1971 size of 5.115. Meanwhile, the deutsche mark is organizing a retreat. Pre-sumably, both sides would be soment to see the dollar at 2.9. ts February 1973 level But outer perimeters of defense have estentiationally been set up at the 18 mark to test the strength of the advance and, if not able to stop it, at least slow the arrival to the 29-mark. The mark, besieged by the Arabs, is caught in a double bind. For as the dollar inches back to its former standing all of Germany's non-EEC commodity imports from oil to coffee will cost more. These goods are bought for dollars and as it takes more marks to buy one dollar, costs within Germany will go up as, inevitably, will prices. This, of course, is exacerbated by the skyrocketing dollar-price of oil and threatens to ruin German efforts to moderate the politically volatile cost-of-living increases The same is true for all the other countries, whose currencles are rapidly retreating against the dollar as a bandwagon mentality sweeps the marketplace.

On the investment side, these dollar purchases split between looking for safe, high-income placements and those looking to maximize capital appreciation.
The latter means a trip to New York where stock prices are low and the outlook rosier than else-

The former could come into the Eurobond market, but there is some question about timing Short-term rates for Eurodollar deposits are still higher than long-term rates—an abnormality stamming from the myriad un-certainties about the economic outlook and withering U.S. controls on capital outflows that are tending to keep corporate treasurers looking for short-term financing.

But this means that investors can get a better return on a three-month deposit than by buying bonds. The outlook, however, now that the traditionally heavy year-end corporate borrowing needs are over, is for the short-term rates to ease substantially-a move that has already

Although long-term rates are expected to stay relatively stable as the short-term rates tumble under them, there may be some attraction for investors to begin looking at bonds now. theory here is that with The an economic downturn looming

The Re-Acclamation of U.S. Power

By John M. Lee

NEW YORK, Jan. 6 (NYT) .-One of the most striking aspects of the far-reaching energy crisis is the re-acclamation of the United States as the dominant world economic power. The reason is that the United States is far less dependent upon imported oil than any of its major trading partners (or rivals) except Can-

This country's 74 percent self-sufficiency (and Canada's 98 percent) compare with no better than 7 percent for West Germany and zero percent for Japan. This means that the United States is hurt less by a total embargo of Arab oil than countries that have suffered only 25 percent cutbacks. Similarly, even though domestic oil prices here will be pulled up by the skyrocketing international prices, the burden of those higher prices falls far more heavily on Western Europe and Japan. The cost rises abroad combine with disruptions due to shortages to produce higher industrial costs and lower output, higher export prices and a potential loss of competitive position.

Amid the talk of resource shortages, it should be recalled that no country (except possibly the Soviet Union) is as well endowed with natural resources as the United States. Those America-the-Beautiful geography texts really mean something; the United States is the largest producer of corn, oil, coal, soybeans, cop-per, natural gas, cotton, aluminum, oranges, magnesium and tomatoes.

Although the United States is increasingly dependent upon foreign suppliers, its big trade partners are even more dependent.

For the past year, the world has been in the midst of a terrific boom in commodities and comhas been a major beneficiary. Furthermore, the relative benefits from developments in oil and other commodities have come on top of an underlying strengthening of the American competitive

New York Stock Market

By Vartanig G. Vartan

NEW YORK, Jan. 6 (NYT).-Wall Street crammed some dazzling events into its four trading days last week. The Dow-Jones industrials ended 1973 on Monday with a fairly limp raily. But on Thursday, the second trading day of the new year, a huge recovery got under way and the Dow boomed by more

The index ended the week at 880.23, showing a net gain of 32.21 points.

Fueling the big Thursday rebound was the Federal Reserve Board's reduction in the required "margin," or cash payment, for buying or carrying stocks on credit to 50 percent from 65 percent. Late in the week, the market also benefited from improved hopes for a settlement of the Israeli-Arab conflict and from the reduction by several major banks in their prime lending rate to 9 3.4 percent from 10 percent.

It was a week when natural-resource stocks-notably the coppers. oils and uranium-rich issues-boomed while the old-line glamours

International Business Machines, the longtime favorite holding of institutions; sold on Friday at its lowest price since 1971, falling 8 1/2 points to 230 3/4. The stock was affected adversely by a request by the Telex Corporation that a Federal court hold IBM in

Weakness also was apparent in such former favorites as ARA

Services, Ayon Products, Sony and Disney.

The four leading gold issues on the New York Stock Exchange all traded at record prices during the week, reflecting higher prices in European bullion markets. New highs were set by Dome Mines, Campbell Red Lake Mines, Homestake Mining and ASA, Ltd. Dome soared 22 1/2 points in two days before its gains were clipped by profit taking.

Railroad stocks also turned in a brisk performance, buoyed by their natural-resource holdings as well as by expectations for 1974 modity prices. The United States can improvement is that most pact of higher fuel costs, the position is expected to grow. A study by the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development shows that in the period 1960-71. American exports saw their share of the market shrink at a rate of 23 percent a year. This coincided with an 8.7 percent annual increase for Japan. Last year, the situation reversed. Japan dropped 7 percent in market share while United States exports gained 2.5 percent.

It is interesting to conjecture whether the export boom was reflecting the first dollar devaluation (in December, 1971) or the what some call the de facto third devaluation (the sharp dollar depreciation in the floating-rate system from February to July).

Since it often takes 18 months more before an exchange-rate change turns the trade figures around, further benefits may be in store. However, it is apparent that an instant and accelerated effect was felt when the second (and third) devaluation priced American goods exceptionally low at a time when the world economic boom had whipped de-mand to unprecedented levels.

On the financial side, low American prices and deflated stock market values attracted a heavy inflow of long-term foreign capital and further bolstered the American position.

All these favorable developments are encapsulated in the strength of the dollar on foreign exchange markets. From a record depreciation of 21.5 percent against major currencies in July (measured against a 1970 benchmarks, the dollar has moved up vigorously to a depreciation of about 14 percent. The yen and European currencies have dropped

DENVER, Jan. 6 (NYT) .- For oil-shale development. Colorado 43 years, the United States has ranches, for example, have sold been sitting on the world's largest oilfield. True or false?

The answer is true. Sort of, until Tuesday. On that day in Denver, showly after 10 a.m. when the envelopes are opened, the federal government will lease to the highest bidder a 5,120-acre tract of land in northwestern Colorado that contains more oil than is known to exist on the North Slope of Alaska.

And that tract is only a tiny chunk of about 16,500 square miles of Colorado, Utah and Wyoming under which lies from 600 billion to 3 trillion barrels of oil—enough to make Middle East oil reserves seem like a puddle and to make four-flushers out of Arab shelkhs.

As unlikely as it seems, in this relatively small sector of the West there is two or three times more oil than is known to exist in the entire rest of the world.

But there are several catches. The first is that it is not really oil at all. It is called oil shale, but even that is wrong. The rock in which it is located is not shale, and "it" is not oil Called Maristones The rocks are called markstones and what is in them is called kerogen. By heating up the maristones to about 900 degrees, the kerogen cooks out into shale oil which can then be refined into gasoline and other petroleum products.

Geologists know the oil shale layers as the Green River Forma-tion. It was formed roughly 60 million years ago at the bottom of three freshwater lakes at the beginning of the Cenozoic era, long after dinosaurs died off and long before man emerged. Algae and other organic materials died and settled to the bottom of these lakes and built up layers some-times 2,000 feet thick. Because of erosion during the centuries, some of these layers are exposed or near the earth's surface.

Ever since the turn of the century, people living on top of the Green River Formation have expected that an oil-shale boom would make them rich. But so far it hasn't happened. In the next two decades, however, it might. It all rests on economic and environmental concerns Although oil companies and oil speculators have been buying have announced technological breakthroughs which they claim privately held oil shall lands for decades, only minor attempts have been made to exploit them from shale cheaply. But skeptics in this country. That is because contend these are largely stock America has had enough cheap conventional oil around to forgo

Exim Bank May Consider Soviet Gas Deal

The U.S. Export-Import Bank acknowledged it might consider a $49.5 million credit loan for a major U.S.-Soviet gas deal in the next month despite Congress's expected restraint against such credits.

Rep Les Aspin, D., Wis., said he learned the bank will consider within the next month whether to grant the loan to the Russian bank for foreign trade.
"We might" consider the matter, Export-Import Vice-Chairman Walter C. Sauer confirmed in a brief interview.

Mr. Sauer refused to discuss whether bank consideration of the loan defies a House ban prohibiting such U.S. credits for Soviet trade until President Nixon certifies that the Soviet Union permits free, emigration of Jews and other citizens. The loan would go to a $110 million exploration of natural

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (AP). gas fields in eastern Siberia. The exploration could lead to an estimated $10 billion U.S.-Soviet project to develop the gas fields and ship gas to the U.S. West

Along with the direct $49.5 million loan, the Export-Import Bank would guarantee another $49.5 million in loans by private U.S. banks. The Russians would pay the remaining amount. Mr. Aspin opposed the loan. He said the deal, along with a second proposed major U.S.-Soviet gas project, "would make last year's fleecing in the Russian wheat deal look like a Sunday school picnic." The Russian wheat sale has been criticized as a major factor in the increase in food prices. Mr. Aspin said gas would cost $1.25 to $1.50 per thousand cubic feet, more than six times the 20-cent price of natural gas in the United States cut off the gas supply at any time, Mr. Aspin said, despite use of the subsidized U.S. loans to finance development of the gas fields. The second proposed U.S. Soviet natural gas project would be in western Siberia. Some of that gas would be shipped to the U.S. East coast. The two gas projects are the major proposals in U.S.-Soviet trade and development. U.S. officials say they could eventually require some $5 billion in sub sidized U.S. credit loans.

The House-passed restraint against such U.S. credits for Soviet trade is certain to be favored in the Senate, where # is cosponsored by 83 of the 100 senators. Only failure of the foreign trade bill to which it is attached could prevent Congress's approval of the Soviettrade restraint.

To Increase Export of Oil After First Significant

Shipment Last Year By Joseph Lelyveld HONG KONG, Jan. 6 (NYT).

-Apparently tempted by the oil crisis, China has been making new commitments to export oil in modest amounts. But there have been no hints that Peking is ready to succumb to the blandishments of the international oil companies in hopes of becoming a major exporter in the near future.

It was only last year that China made its first oil exports of any significance, delivering one million metric tons of low-sulfur crude oil of the highest quality to oilparched Japan. Those deliveries were expected to triple this year. But recently there have been Japanese press reports that the Chinese may be prepared to export as much as five million tons this year if they can rush through necessary pipeline and port con-struction in Lisoning Province in the northeast.

In addition, industry sources say that China has recently mised to meet about onefifth of Hong Kong's requirements for diesel oil, which would be on the order of 100,000 tons. For the first time, this Chinese oil will be sold through a middleman to international oil companies. Local consumers will get it at Esso, Mobil or Shell outlets.

Thailand has been promised 50,000 tons of diesel oil at what a Thai official called a "friendly market price-and it has been encouraged to order more. Peking has also expressed willingness to talk about oil with the Philippines. In all these cases, political motives can be discerned. Neither Thailand nor the Philippines has formal diplomatic relations with Peking yet. Hong Kong's Chinese population will certainly be impressed to know that some of its fuel is coming from the mainland. And China has a strong in-turning to the Soviet Union to meet its energy needs. Even more obvious are the economic incentives for getting into the business of exporting oil when the world price is steadily climbing. China needs foreign exchange to pay for imports.

Saudis Get Japan Aid

TOKYO, Jan. 6 (AP-DJ). The Japanese government has decided to supply 15,000 metric tons of polyvinyl chloride and other raw materials used for plastic manufacturing to Saudi Atabia as "emergency aid," the newspaper Nihon Keizai Shimbur reported last week. Nihon Keizai said the deal resulted from Deputy Premier Takeo Miki's recent visit to Saudi Arabia.

Chinese Move Ottawa Fears U.S. Firms Try To Beat Investor Deadline

By William Borders OTTAWA Jan. 6 (NYT).-The Canadian government is mcreasingly concerned about American corporations hurrying to invest in this country before the effective date of a new law that will limit such investment. The far-reaching legislation, Canada's first significant move to reverse the trend toward foreign -mostly American - control of Canadian industry, was passed last fall after years of study and public debate.

But its official proclamation is still thought to be several months away and, in the meantime, there have already been announcements of two huge American acquisitions of precisely the type that the law seeks to control.

"We intend to proclaim the legislation just as fast as it is possible to do so." Alastair W. Gillespie, the minister of industry, trade and commerce, said Friday under hostile questioning from the opposition in the House of Commons He explained that formal prociamation awaits the establishment of the Foreign Investment Review Agency, which under the law, will screen investment propossis from abroad. Until the elaborate machinery can be set up, the minister said. 'I expect foreign investors to come forward readily to discuss their plans with my officials before finalizing their transactions."

He conceded, however, that such discussions will be on a voluntary basis."

Company Has Talks

Officials of the Masco Corp., Michigan-based that was involved in the most recent take-over, came to Ottawa last week to discuss with Mr. Gillesnie their acquisition late last month of a 49 percent interest in EMCO, Ltd., an Ontario plumbing-equipment company with annual sales of more than

"Of course our people were to discuss it with the happy people in Ottawa," Jonn ... Nicholls jr., the Masco treasurer, in Ottawa," "But as far as we're concerned, the purchase is a fait Mr. Nicholls said that while

"we were obviously aware of the existence of the law" at the time of the transaction, the deal had not been speeded up by the fact that it would have become subject to government scrutiny if it had not been completed rapidly.

The other major acquisition announced since the law was ossed was the purchase of the MacDonald Tobacco Co. of Montreal by R. J. Reynolds,

Record Exports Seen For Scotch Whisky

GLASGOW, Jan. 6 (Reuters), —Scotch whisky exports for 1973
are expected to reach a new record of more than £250 million with the United States remaining the biggest customer.

The Scotch Whisky Association said recently that the United States had imported 26.3 million gallons in the first 10 months of 1973. It was followed by Japan with 5.2 million gallons in the same period, an increase of 187 percent on the first 10 months which is to be completed by March. After the first stage of the law becomes effective this spring, a foreigner or a foreign corpora-tion will need the approval of the federal cabinet in Ottawa to take over any Canadian comthan $250,000 or annual revenues of more than $3 million. In its second stage, which might come a year later, the screening process will be broaden-ed to include the establishment by a foreigner of any new business in Canada, regardless of its size.

Japanese Order 15% Energy Cut For Big Industry

TOKÝO, Jan. 6 (WP).-The government decided yesterday to order 15 percent energy cutbacks for major industrial firms beginning Jan. 18, to deal with the oil shortage. Original plans called for a 20 percent cutback to begin Jan. 1.

but these were suspended after the Arab decision Christmas Eve to treat Japan as a "friendly nation and increase its petroleum supply.

The program reportedly calls for fuel and power reductions of 15 percent from October consumption levels by major industries, government agencies and banks. Newspapers, television stations and stock exchanges will be required to reduce Libraries and other public facilities and industries producing or distributing daily neces sities will be reduced 5 percent. At a cabinet meeting, the government gave a surprise reprieve to Tokyo's after-midnight television strip shows featuring topless dancers. A proposed ban on after-midnight broadcasting was drooped and the government decided instead to allow station

The difference, bankers say, is that the EIB issue, sold during a difficult market, is still mostly in the hands of the underwriting banks and will take some time before the overhang is absorbed, They say that the Amoco price is a better measure of where things are, which would indicate no discount on the Eurofima paper. Also coming to market with $25 million of 15-year debt is American Motors Corp. If it carries a 9 percent coupon, as rumored, it should be quite a sellout. Unfortunately, details were not available at this writing. Also on this week's calendar is the European Investment Bank's second offering denominated 'in Euro—the composite of the nine European currencies. The 60 million Eurco loan is expected to carry an 8 percent coupon and an issue price of par. With the component currencles all in decline vis-a-vis the dollar, there is little general demand for this kind of cocktail. However, the loan will be available for sale in Italy and exempted from the government's exchange con-trols—which means that Italians can be expected to take it up as the Euroo is still more attractive than remaining in lire.

The situation is ideal for the FIB, which finds itself in the happy position of being able to cheap in a weak "cur-

While you're at it, why not take all the marbles? That's precisely what Nor-man Weinstein did in the recent Chicago International DAFOTIS/BLACK Tournament at the La Salie Hotel. The event was sponsored by the United States Chess Federation in conjunc-tion with the Chicago Chess Club to qualify promising young American masters for the international master rank. But Weinstein did more—he ran away with first prize.
Weinstein, 23 years old, of Allston, Mass., won six games and drew four for a WEINSTEIN/WHITE winning score of 8 points, losing only to the second-prize winner, Gudmundur Sigurjonsson of Iceland, who Q-R4, led into an incredible three-part refutation. Since Weinstein easily surpassed the international-master norm of 7 points for the tourney, he now has his first leg of the three required to attain the international master rank. Hottest of the Year This brilliant success, coupled with his performances in the United States Open and the Atlantic Open, in both of which he shared first prize, makes Weinstein the hottest prospect in American chess in 1973.

Still, he had to concede

one ray of the limelight to James Tarjan, 21, of Berkeley, Calif., who, in sharing third and fourth prizes with International Master Nikola Karaklajic of Yugoslavia, also achieved his first qualifying master rank.

THE EYE OF THE STORM

By Patrick White Viking. 608 pp. $8.95. Reviewed by Anatole Broyard

ALL too often, the Nobel Prize for literature has seemed like a poor pun on its own name, being awarded more for noble sentiments than literary quality. But in 1973, through some happy accident or belated working of the law of averages, the prize was given to the author of a bona fide first-class novel that is "noble" only in the sense that all really good art is. To go even further, one might almost say that the prize committee has "discovered" an important writer, for until now Patrick White has not been generally known outside Britain and his native Australia.

At first glance, "The Eye of the Storm" would seem to be one more distinguished mediocrity. After glancing at the dust-jacket, my heart sank at the prospect of reading a 608-page novel about a wealthy, sadistic, bedridden woman-once an imperious beautynow, in her 80s, perorating over her life and persecuting everyone within range. Unwelcome images of Bette Davis, Tallulah Bank-head, even Ethel Barrymore, came to mind

But Mr. White has reminded me what a good author can do with even the most unpromising material. His octogenarian invalid has enough variety and vitality to furnish material for half a dozen modern novels, and both her middle-aged children are worth a book in their own right. Like a cophisticated Dickens, the author has created any number of "round" minor characters, each one of them capable of surprising

Though Elizabeth Hunter, the old woman, is more than interesting enough, I cast my lot with her son and daughter, perhaps because it is easier to get involved with someone who has a future, for better or worse. Her son, Basil is an actor, succ enough to have been knighted in Britain, but not good enough to carry off "King Lear." His romantic posturing is made both pathetic and poignant by his aging body's inability to live up

He and his sister have returned to Australia after long absences -to make sure of their inheritance. Throwing himself on his knees in "the theater of reunion." Basil remembers that his right knee is having one of its bad spells. Even worse than his body, his mind is almost always having one of its bad spells, failing to distinguish between sincerity and stagecraft. A symbol of the solipsism and hypertrophied con-sciousness of artists in general, Basil is a better tragedian offstage than on.

moaned "horrible." Haiti's G. R. Rouzier said. "I feel like a bride before my wedding night." West German team manager Helmut Schoen almost managed a smile and the Russians dumped an angry protest in the lap of the Federation Internationale de Football Association after officially being kicked out of the World Cup competition.

This was the situation today as soccer officials from four continents left for home after the draw for the World Soccer Cup this year.

They will return for the June 13 to July 7 championships in nine West German cities in the biggest sports (estival outside the Olympic Games.

Despite the festive occasion-1,000 invited guests inside the concert hall of Frankfurt's radio station, 800 million television viewers in 41 countries and an undisclosed number of radio listeners yesterday's draw went on without any fireworks. FIFA's organising committee had met earlier in the day and worked out a plan to keep the big teams apart and had taken all sorts of geographical considerations. They also seeded Brazil, Uruguay, Italy and West Germany to head their four-team groups. The only gasp of excitement came when an 11-year-old Berlin choirboy. Detley Lange, plucked out East Germany from the glass bowl and placed Georg Buscher's team in group 1 with their West German neighbors and cup favorites. The winners of groups 2 and 4 and the runners-up of groups 1 and 3 will go into group B of the second final round. The runners-up in groups A and B will meet to decide third and fourth places at Munich on July 6. The winners of groups A and B will meet in the final in Munich on July 7. Brazil the reigning world champions, will play the opening game of the tournament on June 13 in Frankfurt against either Spain or Yugoslavia. The two European countries meet in a playoff game in Frankfurt on Feb. 13 after being tied on points and goals in qualification Group 7. This game was decided by the PIPA during a morning session yesterday. The world body, by a 13-5 vote, also rejected a Soviet demand for a second game against Chile on neutral ground. The Russians, held to a scoreless draw in Moscow, refused to play in Santiago, Chile, after the overthrow of President Salvador Allende's Markirt government. Moscow said the national stadium had been used as a "concentration camp and the grass was soaked with blood" of the opponents of the

"Not a bad group," said Washington Cataldi, looking over the Netherlands, Sweden and Bulgaria, "I wouldn't be surprised if we come out with a clean slate. We like to play European teams."

Joso Havelange, the FIFA vice-president and chairman of Brazil's Sports Federation, was satisfied:

"Perhaps the West Germans got a slightly better draw, but I have no complaints. We won't underestimate the op-position in our search for a fourth title." Rouzier of Haiti, one of the three newcomers to the World Cup, was in a sunny calypso mood, "We are happy. Imagine us playing in the Olympic Stadium in Munich," he said. "I feel like a bride before her wedding night. Perhaps we can do a North Korea on one of the teams."

Rouzier referred to Korea's 1966 giant-slaying of Italy in England and the Asians' 3-0 lead in the quarterfinal against Portugal before Eusebio took over and secured a 5-3 victory. Memories of the disaster in Middlesbrough did not haunt Italy's successful coach, Ferrucio Valcareggi, who said, "The luck in the draw did not run my way. Look at the Germans in Group 1. ## Mister President

WASHINGTON.—President Nixon's celebrated commercial airline flight to California was a small step in a dubious direction. Eventually, a day may come when a White House correspondent story will read like this:

It was anof those days for President Nixon. "Bringing the presidency back to the people may be great for my image, but it sure makes it hard to get any work done," he told newsmen tonight as he browsed at the paperback bookstand at the Philadelphia Airport. The President was looking for an Agatha Christie or an Erie Stanley Gardner to help him kill an unanticipated three-hour delay in his flight to Providence, where he was scheduled to speak tonight to the annual banquet of the Daughters of the Sons of Bohemia.

He had left Washington on a commercial flight to Providence with one stop scheduled at Phila There, as the plane touched down on the runway, the pilot announced that the rest of the flight had been cancelled. At the airline counter where the President sought an explanation for the sudden cancellation. he was told only that there had been "an equipment problem." But I have to be in Providence in three hours to deliver a speech," the President said.

"That's life, buddy," said the airline clerk.

After shopping from counter to counter, the President finally found an airline with a flight leaving for Providence three hours later.

"With luck," he said over his fifth cup of airport coffee, "I can get to the Daughters' banquet while they're finishing dessert." Subsequently, the flight turned out to be oversold, so there was no seat for the President when he reached the plane. In a burst of obvious anger he asked the stewardess if she knew she was dealing with the President of the United States

"Just because you are the President gives you no right to lose your temper with me," she re-

The President appeared angry enough to continue the argu-ment, but he was prevented from doing so by federal marshals, who forcibly removed him from the plane and might have detained him for questioning had he not applogized profusely for

By Russell Baker "All right, Mr. President," one of the marshals told him, "we're not going to make anything of it this time, but hereafter you'd better watch how you behave around airplanes."

After phoning his regrets to the Daughters of the Sons of Bohemia, the President took an airport limousine into Philadelphia. His cashmere overcoat sustained a substantial burn when fellow limousine passenger dropped his cigarette in the President's lap.

At Philadelphia's 30th Street Station, where he hoped to catch a late train back to Washington, the President discovered that he had only $1.95 in cash and would have to write a check for the

When the ticket agent asked to see some identification, President Nixon produced his White House pass.

"Don't you have a driver's il cense?" asked the ticket agent. When the President said he emed to have misplaced his driver's license, the agent said: "A likely story Mr. President. Step aside now. The paying customers are getting impatient. Finally the President was able to borrow the fare money from the White House correspondents. who stated that they thought it better to manipulate the news than spend the night sleeping on railroad benches.

Talking with newsmen on his way back to Washington, the President expressed concern about how long he could continue to do his job if he keeps on living as people do. This morning, he said, the bus to the White House had been 45 minutes late. and so crowded that he had had to stand all the way.

As a result he had had no chance to read Professor Kissinger's latest plan for world eace on the bus. It had poured rain just as he got off the bus, so he was soaked during the three-block walk to the White House and had to spend the morning drying his suit on the radiator which, naturally, made it impossible for him to meet with the cabinet or even to see people in his office. A 3 o'clock conference on the economy had to be cancelled since the President had to be at the airport at 5 p.m. and knew that you can never catch a cab on Pennsylvania Avenue once the rush hour begins.

After the President left the train in Washington tonight, he had a 45-minute wait for a bus to his modest row house in the Glover Park district of Wash-He hopes his car pool driver, if he happens to read this story, will pick him up at his house in the morning.

A New Level of Decadence Comes to Haiti

By Judy Klemesrud

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (NYT),-Jean-Claude (Baby Doc) Duvalier didn't up as promised, but his sister, Nicole, did. So did the cream of Haitian society and a gaggle of Beautiful People-1,500 in r the opening night party of a new retreat for the rich, billed by its owners as "the most extraordinary, lascivious and decadent place in the world."

It is Habitation Leclerc, a $1.8-million hilly hideaway, nestled amid almond trees, magnolias, breadfruit and palms on a 15-

'Here the people are smiling... They can always pick the fruits... if they get hungry.'

acre estate that was once supposedly owned by Pauline Bonaparte Leclerc, the funloving sister of Napoleon.

"When I say decadent, I don't necessarily mean sex," said Olivier Coquelin, president of the resort, who also founded such fashionable watering holes as New York's Le Club, Ondine, Cheetah and Hippopotamus, "For me, decadent is just a beautiful way of life, where everything is beautifully lazy, and all you have to do is raise your hand and you get service."

Decadent could also mean that the $150a-day-a-couple paradise is surrounded by some of the worst squalor in the Western Hemisphere, and that tumbledown shacks of Haitians whose per capita income is round $80 a year—can readily be seen by guests who might happen to be sipping a rum punch at the swimming pool.

But management points out that the natives are friendly and, anyway, the resort is surrounded by a stone wall, which has chunks of broken glass embedded

My friends are always saying, How do you dare live in that country? You'll get killed you'll get mugged, you'll get robbed," Lawrence Peabody of the Boston Peabodys, co-owner and interior designer of the resort, said shortly before the party began. "I tell them, I can't stand the poverty in the United States, I say, Look, here the people are smiling. If nothing else, they can always pick the fruits and vegetables if they get hungry."

Mrs. Mary (Sisi) Cahan of New York, resplendent in a bib of imitation diamonds by Kenneth Jay Lane, nodded in agreement. "It's tropical poverty as opposed to cold poverty, which is much worse,"

Girl Injured

Almost 2,000 Haitians stood outside the gates of the resort as the guests arrived for the party. A 15-year-old Haitlan girl was run over by a car and was taken to a hospital.

Once inside the vast resort complex, the guests sipped drinks beside a large circular pool, visited Hippopotamus, a discotheque modeled after the one in New York, and strolled on the grounds. Later, they dined buffet style on such Haitian dishes as chicken and rice, beans and rice, and roast pig.

The highlight for most of the Haitlans seemed to be the arrival of President Duvalier's sister, Nicole Duvalier Foucard, who wore a long white lace dress and was accompanied by two beefy bodyguards.

"Elegant," she said in French, as Mr. Peabody guided her around the resort. Finally Haiti has something no other country has." When asked about news reports that her

32-year-old sister, Marie-Denise, wielded the real power in the Haitlan government, Nicole smiled slightly and replied, "I'm not in politics; I don't know."

Americans and Haifians at the party commented on how much Haiti has changed since 1971, when the title of president-for-life passed from the late François (Papa Doc: Duvalier, to his then 19-year-old son, Jean-Claude No longer, they insisted, is Haiti the terror-ridden country depicted in Graham Greene's novel, "The Comedians, with its dread secret police known as the Tontons Macoutes (Creole for Bogeymen).

Today Haiti courts tourism and last year 206,000 tourists visited here, according to one of the partygoers, Theo Duval, the executive assistant to the director general of the National Office of Tourism.

'It's tropical poverty as opposed to cold poverty, which is much worse.'

That was more than double the 1972 figure,

The indulgences at the Habitation include 44 individual villas (there is a private pool for every two villas), designed by Albert Mangones, a Haitian architect, to "look terribly ancient." Each residence is rented on a daily flat rate ($150 a day a couple in season; $85 off-season) that includes meals, liquor, three Haitian servants at one's call, and a jeep with chauffeur. Tipping is prohibited.

According to Mr. Coquelin, the resort was financed by two $400,000 loans, one from a New York bank, the other from the Agency for International Development, and $1 million from 14 backers, including Giovanni Agnelli, George Plimpton, the Duke of Bedford, Prince Egon von Purstenberg. Mick Jagger, Jean-Paul Belmondo, Roger Vadim and Baron Edmond de Rothschild

But you don't have to be a somebody to stay at Habitation Leclerc, Mr. Coquelin said. All you need is to be "groovy" and have enough money.

Clifford Irving Has Weekend of Freedom

Clifford Irving had his first taste of freedom since August, 1972, this weekend when he was transferred from a federal prison to a "halfway house" for convicts in New York, and immediately granted a weekend pass. Irving, who was recently granted parole to take effect Peb. 14, was convicted of selling a bogus "autobiography" of Roward Hughes to McGraw-Hill He had been denied the right to enter the balfway house by the Justice Department, but a federal judge ruled later that he could go to the center for inmates who have less than six months to serve. His wife, Edith, is awaiting retrial in Switzerland on related charges. There was no word on where Irving spent the weekend.

Four internationally known figures have been named commanders of the French Legion of Honor. They are Joan Miró, the Spanish painter; Alexander Calder, the American sculptor; Sir Georg Solti, British director of both the Paris Orchestra and the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, and Rolf Liebermann, a German who directs the Paris Opera.

Lt. Col. Ramon Herinek, a former prisoner of war in Southeast Asia, has settled down in San Antonio, Texas, with his bride, Judi, and their nine children. Horinek, who was divorced before leaving for duty in Vietnam, has six children and Mrs. Horinek, whose former husband was declared legally dead after being listed as missing in action in Vietnam, has three children. They met last summer in Salina, Kan., while he was on a speaking tour. They were married at midnight New Year's Eve in Las Vegas.

Jim Brown, 37, the actor and former Cleveland Browns star fullback is engaged to Diane Laverne Stanley, 18. daughter of a Philadelphia lawyer. Miss Stanley, a sophomore law student at Clark College in Atlanta, met Brown last spring while vaca-tioning in Acapulco, Mexico. They plan to wed at the end of the plan w school year.
